Our MoneyMadeClear guides – here to help you

This guide is part of our Everyday money series.

No selling. No jargon. Just the facts about basic bank accounts.

If you would like this guide in Braille, large print or audio format, please call our MoneyMadeClear helpline on 0300 500 5000 or Typetalk on 1800 1 0300 500 5000. (Calls should cost no more than 01 or 02 UK-wide calls, and are included in inclusive mobile and landline minutes.)

To help us maintain and improve our service, we may record or monitor calls.
With our Moneymadeclear range of guides, we cut out the jargon and give you just the facts about financial products and services, helping you to make an informed decision.

Just the facts about basic bank accounts.

We try to ensure that the information in this guide, some of which comes from sources outside the FSA, is correct at the time of print. It is possible that some of it is oversimplified, or may become inaccurate over time, for example because of changes in the law. You should check the current position before you take any action.

This is general information to help you make financial decisions. It is not advice, and cannot take account of your individual circumstances. When making decisions about your own circumstances you should consider whether to consult a financial or other professional adviser.

You want

or need a bank account to help you manage your money, but aren't able to have a current account.

It's about basic bank accounts and:
• explains what they are;
• how to get one; and
• answers some of the questions you may have.

How basic bank accounts work

A basic bank account allows you to receive money and pay bills.
It can be a first step towards opening a regular current account later on.
See the Jargon buster on page 10 for an explanation of some words you may come across.

With a basic bank account you can:
- have your wages, benefits, State pension or tax credits paid directly into your account;
- pay in cheques for free (but remember you will have to wait a few days before the money is available for you to spend);
- take money out at cash machines with a cash card (this is usually free, but some cash machines make a charge);
- withdraw money at the Post Office®; and
- pay your bills by direct debit – meaning you could pay less for some things – especially gas, electricity or telephone.

Some banks let you have a debit card to pay for your shopping and some let you pay your bills by standing order.
Lots of banks and some building societies offer basic bank accounts – see page 4 for a full list.

Key points

With a basic bank account you:
- don’t get a cheque book;
- can pay in cheques for free;
- can take money out at cash machines; and
- can pay bills by direct debit or standing order.

Key things to think about

When choosing your basic bank account:

Check that you can use cash machines near where you live or work for free (ask the bank or building society if you aren’t sure).

Check that you can pay money in or get money out at a Post Office® branch, if this is important for you.

Check that there is a branch of the bank/building society near you where you can pay in money and check on your account.

Check that you will get the services you need like a debit card, direct debits or standing orders.
Different types of basic bank account

This table shows which banks and building societies offer basic bank accounts and what services you can expect to get.

All these accounts accept Automated Credit Transfer (ACT) payments, offer cash withdrawals at the Post Office®, and a cash-machine card. None of them offer a cheque book.

Explanatory notes

1. Correct at time of print but always check with the bank or building society.
2. 16 and 17 year-olds can open a similar account.
3. The account may be closed if a direct debit is refused three times. Banks may cancel SOs/DDs if you don’t have enough money in your account to pay them on more than one occasion.

Your questions answered

Question

How do I keep track of my money with a basic bank account?

Answer

You will get a statement in the post, usually once every three months, showing what money has been paid in and what has gone out.

With most basic bank accounts you can check how much money you have and get a mini statement from a cash machine showing the most recent transactions.

Most accounts will also let you check your balance at a Post Office®. And with some you can check your balance online.

Question

What if there isn’t enough money in my account to pay my direct debit or standing order?

Answer

You can’t go overdrawn with a basic bank account because you won’t get an overdraft limit. But if you pay your bills by direct debit or standing order and there isn’t enough money in your account, then the bank will not make the payment. You may be charged a fee or the bank may cancel your direct debit or standing order, or even close your account – see page 4.

You will still have to pay the bill as well as any charge. It is really important to make sure you have enough money in your account to pay your bills.

Question

What happens if I only have £6 left in my account and the cash machine only gives £10 notes?

Answer

If your account has a buffer zone, the machine will let you have £10 even if there is only £6 in your account. The bank will not charge you for going overdrawn up to the buffer-zone limit.

If it doesn’t have a buffer zone, you won’t be able to take out £6.

You can take out the exact amount of money you have in your account over the counter either at your bank or building society or at a Post Office® branch.

Question

Can I open a basic bank account whatever my credit history?

Answer

Almost everybody should be able to open a basic bank account. The bank or building society may want to check your credit history to see if you have any county court judgments (CCJs) against you or have been made bankrupt. But even if you have, you may still be able to open an account – check the table on page 4.
Your questions answered

Question

What proof will I need to open an account?

Answer

The law says that banks and building societies have to identify their new customers. This is to help stop criminal activities like money laundering. They will explain which documents they will accept as proof of your identity, although this may vary from one firm to another. They may ask you for a government-issued document:

- with a photograph (such as a valid passport); or
- without a photograph (such as a valid old-style driving licence) plus another document from an approved source.

If you don’t have these documents, they may accept other documents such as a letter from a:

- government department or local council confirming your right to State benefits (for example, pension, council tax or housing benefit); or
- care home manager or warden of sheltered accommodation or refuge confirming your identity.

They may even accept a letter or statement from an ‘appropriate person’ who knows you, such as a social worker or teacher, stating that you are who you say you are.

See our Proving your identity guide for more information – see Useful contacts.

Question

I don’t think that I could use Chip and PIN – is there an alternative?

Answer

If you can’t manage Chip and PIN, you can use Chip and Signature or a rubber stamp instead.

Next steps

Step 1

Decide which basic bank account would be best for you. Use the table on page 4 and think about the points on page 3 to help you decide.

Step 2

Be ready to prove to the bank or building society that you are who you say you are. If you have difficulty proving your identity, the member of staff dealing with your application can usually refer the matter to someone who is authorised to decide in exceptional circumstances.

Step 3

If you want to have your wages, State pension or tax credits paid directly into your account, talk to your wages office or the pension or benefit office dealing with your claim.

Step 4

To set up a direct debit or standing order to pay household or other regular bills, ask the company for a direct debit or standing order form. Direct debit forms are returned to the company that you want to pay, but you give a standing order form to your bank.
Jargon buster

Some key words and phrases explained.

Automated Credit Transfer (ACT)
Payment of wages, benefits, pensions and tax credits directly into a bank or building society account.

Balance
The total amount of money in your account, or the amount you owe the bank if you overdraw.

Buffer zone
A small amount of credit/overdraft that a bank may give you, so you can get money from a cash machine even if you don’t have enough money in your account.

Cash card
A card you can use to check your balance or withdraw cash from your account at cash machines or Post Office® branches. You cannot use a cash card to pay for goods or services.

Chip and PIN
The name for using a personal identification number to authorise payment from your account.

Credit check
A search of your borrowing record, also known as your credit history. A bank or other organisation carries out a credit check on a person when deciding whether to lend them money or to open a bank account in their name.

Debit card
A card issued by a bank that you use to pay for your shopping. The money is usually taken from your account immediately.

Direct debit
A way of paying bills from your bank account. You sign a form allowing the company you are paying to take the money directly from your account on specific dates.

Interest
A charge for borrowing money, or a reward for saving money. It is usually shown as a percentage of the amount borrowed or saved.

Money laundering
The process criminals go through to disguise and hide the money made from their crimes.

Overdraft
A facility allowing you to spend more money from your account than you have in it. The bank will usually charge you interest if this happens, and sometimes other fees as well.

Standing order
A way of paying bills from your bank account. You sign a form sent to you by the company you are paying. This sets out the amount to be paid and the payment dates. You then give this to your bank.

The bank pays the amounts from your account automatically on the agreed dates to the company you are paying. You must tell your bank if the amount or the dates of payment need to change.

Statement
A detailed list of all payments in and out of your account over a period of time, for example, three months. Ask your bank how often it sends statements.

Undischarged bankrupt
A person who cannot pay their debts and is still on the bankruptcy register.

Cashback
A service that allows you to get cash from your account in supermarkets or other shops, using your basic bank account debit card.
