

Social Services for Adults

Services for people with learning disabilities

November 2003

Sutton and Merton
Primary Care Trust

Services for Adults are here to help people over the age of 18 at times when they need support and intervention. We aim to provide or arrange services to enable people to live in their own homes and to remain part of their community.

How do Social Services help people with a learning disability?

If you are a person with a learning disability who lives in the London Borough of Merton or you are placed or supported by Merton Council you can ask for help and support from a team of specialist Health and Social Workers. These workers can assess your needs and offer support and advice to people with a learning disability and their carers.

There are rules governing who gets help and support from Social Services. A separate information leaflet 'Guide to social services for adults' gives more information about who qualifies for help.

What kinds of services are available?

- Merton team for people with learning disabilities
- Day opportunities
- Employment advice
- Supported living
- Help to live at home
- Residential care
- Respite care
- Carer support.

Services for people with learning disabilities work in close liaison with many others including housing providers, schools/colleges, the voluntary sector, employment advisers, primary and secondary health providers.

What happens if my needs change?

We will assess your needs, how your needs have changed and how well the services we are arranging meet your current needs. If your needs have changed, we may adjust the service you receive.

Is help available for my carer?

Carers are entitled to an assessment in their own right. A separate information leaflet 'How to get help if you are looking after someone' is available. If you would like a copy of this leaflet please contact Merton Learning Disability Team on 020 8545 4490.

Sharing Information

As we work in partnership with the Health Service and other agencies to provide a package of services, there is often a need to share your personal information with other organisations involved in your care.

If necessary we may ask you to sign a form giving us permission to share your personal information with other organisations. For your own protection or for the protection of other people we may, on rare occasions, share information without your permission. We will inform you if this happens and explain the reasons why.

Merton Housing and Social Services departments has a policy on gaining access to information held about you in your file. You have the right to see this information if it was recorded after 1st April 1989. There is normally a £10.00 administration charge for this service unless you are in receipt of certain social security benefits.

If you would like to see the information that has been written about you, you can apply in writing to:
